The triangular injection zone for injections has been narrowed as shown in this diagram. The reason for this change resulted from documented cases where some pharmaceutical products, even when given in the originally required triangle zone, migrated into the muscles of the wholesale chuck. When these muscles were packaged using the new atmospheric packaging technologies, these muscle cuts became off-colored. By narrowing the injection zone, using sub-Q products whenever possible, and using the correct length needles, these blemishes should be minimized.

Diagram is compliments of Novardis Animal Health